WWW.UNICOSYSTEM.CO.UK – NEW WEB-SITE

Unico System International's new web-site has been specifically developed for the UK market and contains information for architects, distributors, contractors as well as commercial and domestic customers. Visit www.unicosystem.co.uk

Product technical data downloads, project case studies and CPD presentation material are some of the key areas of the site. There are also direct links to associated building industry sites such as RIBA, the CPD Certification Service and the company's business partners. Click to visit New web site

NEW AGENT FOR UNICO SYSTEM

Unico System International have appointed ACPS Limited, owned by Graham Nash, as their agent for the North West. ACPS (Air Conditioning Product Sales) already represents a number of respected HVAC brands including Aiax UK, distributors of Aermec water chillers and fan coils, Ygnis boilers and Euroair, textile ducting. "The Unico System complements our existing agencies and is an exciting alternative to cassette air conditioning. It will provide comfort levels and other practical benefits not achievable with other similar systems," says Graham Nash. Graham's experience in the industry was essential to the acquisition of the Unico System agency. He spent 26 years with Carrier and has extensive other HVAC design and contracting experience.

COOL DESIGNER CLOTHES

In the retail world, attractive merchandising and an inviting customer environment are considered essential to sales success. Contractor J C Watson has been responsible for helping to create exactly the right in-store environment for a chain of high quality designer clothes outlets, Choice. In their outlet at Canary Wharf, the Unico System mini-duct high provides air conditioning and comfort to the store visitor, counteracting the heat generated by the in-store lighting scheme, which is designed to display the merchandise as attractively and effectively as possible.

A presentation to the contractor convinced him that ceiling cassette air conditioning was not the ideal solution for this high quality retail outlet. Noisy operation and an unsightly box on the ceiling would have been two major disadvantages. Instead, the only evidence of the Unico System installation are small, virtually unnoticeable slotted outlets on the ceiling. They fully integrate with the overall interior design concept of the store and the system is virtually silent in operation.

They provide draught free air conditioning at a consistent, even level, using the building's chilled water infrastructure that was already in place. No condensers are required and air is simply pulled across the system's chilled water coil. This has a surface area greater than that of conventional systems resulting in a greater reduction in humidity when cooling, leading to greater comfort and improved efficiency.

"The Unico System has helped to reproduce the ideal retailing environment," says Julian Hines, Proprietor of Choice. Click to see more...
